One Night Treatment

Soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of CUTICURA SOAP. Dry, and anoint freely with CUTICURA, the great skin cure and purest of emollients. Wear, during the night, old, loose kid gloves, with the finger ends cut off and air holes cut in the palms. For red, rough, chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, with shapeless nails and painful finger ends, this treatment is simply wonderful, and points to a speedy cure of the most distressing cases when physicians and all else fail.

Too many merchants look upon advertising as a laxory too expenieve to be often indiging in. That is a wrong view to take of the matter if precedent amounts to anything. The princes of the merchant world to-flar are those who keep their names and the goods they are selling constantly before the buying public. It takes money, and lots of it, to do this, but if it was not a paring investing. Advertising should be studied with the same careful consideration that other branches are given. How often you find a merchant who will advertise unseasonable goods, and then because the public do not swarm into histore and fight for the bargains offered, the ayes aftertising does not should be a seasonable goods, and then because the public do not swarm into histore and fight for the bargains offered, the ayes aftertising does not seen the constant it is a season of the season and the continuation of the season in over the has all space run svery week is of more profit than a big space run three or four times a year. If a merchant refuses to advertise during the time is goods are in eason, when the season is over he has his stock or in the season in over he has his stock or all goods that should have been disposed of long ago. His customere have goos to the man who did advertise at the proper time. Result—His saise did not meet his expectations, and he is conviced that devertising does not pay.
